“One Vision, One Voice”

One Vision, One Voice is the motto that the Madison County Business League will use as they begin implementing the mission and vision for the new organization. The Business League conducted its first official meeting today with the purpose of formalizing the organization and putting a preliminary marketing plan of action in place.

“The new organization was created to promote the general economic welfare and development of Madison County by working in partnership with the Madison County Economic Development Authority (MCEDA)”, stated Tim Coursey, Executive Director of MCEDA.

Coursey added, “The Business League provides a platform or forum whereby business members of the League, MCEDA Board members, mayors of all our towns and cities, and the President of the Board of Supervisors, have the opportunity to sit down together and discuss common issues that affect the development of the Madison County economy.”

Todd Burwell, Attorney of Latham & Burwell, PLLC and the League’s newly appointed Chairman stated “ The Business League was created in an effort to bring the public and private stakeholders in Madison County together at the economic development table help to assist with economic development related projects and to eliminate lost opportunities.”

Other appointed officers of the League include Sam Cameron, CEO of the Mississippi Hospital Association, who will be serving as Vice Chair of the Business League and Chip Estes of the Madison County Economic Development Authority serving as Secretary/Treasurer.
